UNIVERSAL CENTRONICS INTERFACE

FOR VIC20, CBM16, PLUS 4, CBM64, CBM128

This interface connects to the serial port and makes the computer believe that it is connected to a CBM printer. The data and control codes from the computer are translated into those that the connected printer expects to see.

By setting switches within the interface the printer will be able to print ALL CBM SPECIAL GRAPHIC SYMBOLS and SCREEN PICTURES.

Clearly not all printers can do this (daisy wheels can't) but most current models are catered for and all types will at print normal characters and symbols.

Power is drawn from pin 18 of your Centronics printer normally but a C2N style cassette connector is provided if needed NOTE on C16 and PLUS 4 a convertor from small round plug to C2N plug is required.See leads section of this catalogue.

* 100% CBM COMPATIBLE   * COMPLETE and well documented

* CBM GRAPHICS & PICS on most matrix printers   * USES NO MEMORY

       CAT.NO. A0036   £59.95

A BUFFERED version of the above is available with its own 8K memory to enable the computer to send to the buffer as fast as it can then return control to you for the next task whilst the interface feeds the printer at the best rate for printing.

       CAT.NO. A0036(B)   £65.95

STACK CENTRONICS INTERFACE

Consisting of a round cable 2m long with suitable connectors at each end for the CBM user port and a Centronics device together with a cassette or disk containing special printer software.

* COMPATIBLE with WORDCRAFT, SIMPLY WRITE, VIZAWRITE, EASYSCRIPT etc
  and most popular spread sheets etc.

* EASY TO USE simple Basic commands give 4 functions simplified to effectively ON, OFF, RELOCATE, COPY.

BLITZ COMPILER (DISK BASED)

CBM 64 compatible compiler producing programs which operate
MANY TIMES FASTER than the normal basic interpreter.

Enables a program written in Basic, or Basic and machine code to run at speeds approaching good machine code.

BLITZ translates programs into a special P-code with very low overheads. This P-code is executed much more rapidly than the original program. Moreover large Basic programs become smaller needing less memory and disk space.

Just tell the compiler the name of the program to compile and it will compile it to disk and produce a cross-reference file to trace any execution errors in your program back to line numbers.

BLITZ handles extensions to Basic such as SIMONS BASIC and will permit OVERLAYS and CHAINING with passed variables.

Compiled programs cannot be LISTED and security can be achieved by using a simple password routine so that any copies made will not run without the password.
NOTE. compiled programs run independently of the compiler.

STACK LIGHT PEN FOR BBC

The LIGHT PEN is designed to exactly match the performance of each computer and is as accurate as that computer can be.
The pen is able to instantly inform the computer where it is positioned on the screen of your T.V. or monitor.
A unique touch switch system is used to tell the computer that you are ready for it to respond avoiding accidental entries.
The pen is attached to the computer by a special cofled cable made specially for Stack giving the lightest cable able to withstand an incredible number of bends and stretches in use.
The highest quality materials are used from the ultra fast light sensors to the durable moulded plastics and mirror chromed touch-contacts.

COMMUNICATIONS

As yet the COMPUNET modem cannot download program files.
For this you need a program called XMODEM and a standard modem linked via the RS232 interface (A0012) £33.00 inc.

The 128 owner can go on line in CP/M mode with exactly the same hardware requirements. You will need the CP/M and SYS file of 6th. Dec. 1985 since earlier versions do not recognise the RS232 port.

ICPUG has an excelent library of public domain software (free to members otherwise £2.50). The disk CU3 has both the modified SYS to update your CP/M and IMP which is a very good terminal program for 128 in CP/M mode.
